Executive Board Elected for the Alliance for Clean Energy New York

Leadership from renewables development companies and environmental organizations

ALBANY, Mar 2, 2023 — A new suite of leaders in the clean energy landscape comprises the Executive Board for the foremost clean energy industry trade organization in New York state.

Kate McKeever, the vice-president, head of government affairs at RWE Renewables, was elected to be vice-chair of the board of directors of the Alliance for Clean Energy New York (ACE NY). The new treasurer is Julie Tighe, president of the New York League of Conservation Voters. Moira Cyphers, the director, eastern state affairs at American Clean Power, is the new secretary. The president of the board, Keith Silliman, director of regulatory compliance at Cypress Creek Renewables, was elected and announced in January.

“In order to achieve New York state’s ambitious climate goals we must continue to collaborate as an industry,” McKeever said. “ACE NY provides the venue to continue organizing and advocating for the advancement of clean energy. I’m honored to work together with the great leadership represented across the Executive Board to turn these goals into projects.”

“I am honored to join the Alliance for Clean Energy New York’s executive board and to serve as its next treasurer,” Tighe said. “At the New York League of Conservation Voters, we know first hand how critical ACE NY’s work is in advancing clean energy and fighting climate change in our state. I look forward to working with my fellow board members as ACE NY continues to drive progress and create a more sustainable future for all New Yorkers.”

“Serving on the executive committee of ACE NY is an honor,” Cyphers said. “New York is a leader on clean energy – in large part due to ACE NY’s efforts to advance policies that have set the state on a path to build a robust offshore wind industry, expand solar and storage projects statewide, and to decarbonize the economy. I look forward to supporting ACE NY’s important work in the coming year.”
